GLISH INHAPPINESS The "noble" and "gentle" classes of singland probably never will cease to lament the failure of the great American rebellion. They are rather more sore ever it than the irreconcilable confederate element of the south, as represented a short time ago in the Virginia democratic convention, and which talked "state sovereignty" almost as if there had been no decision of arms against it and them. The "noble" and "gentle" classes of England wanted the American Union dissolved, anticipating in that result a great blow to popular government, and muturally preerring an aristogracy founded on slavery to the classes in England wanted the American Union dessolved, because they foresaw that in the Juthern confederacy they would have a great only raw products, wnich England would take and furnish finished products at high prices in evchange and then the jungo' element in English politics desired the overthrow of the American Luion, halling with joy so promising a prospect of getting rid of the only possible rival of English political power on the globe Scityria of these swittingster in the calculations. THE MATRIMONIAL MARKET

Interesting Entery on with an 'old Girt' on the Subject.

The New Calert a Time-Democrat statistician started ontifor the inudable purpose of coffecting reliable data as to lite outlook for the compage asson of the matrixonial market. He caled at a $50,000 house in the aristocratic quarter of the two and sear in the care.

ing reliable data se to the outlook for the coming season of it in matrinonial market. He called at a $50,000 house in the aristocratic quarter of the town and sent in his cand to a raving, tearing reached, who has literally pulserized the glided and struken youths who hang about down arrayed in the fleedest and whitest of white gowns, bill in the hight of faction.

I have called, this, "said the elderly, bild headed father of a family, whose best load is stalistics about everything impracticable, "to mierview you on be condition of the obton—not mean the sugar—I should say the—oh—metrimonicd market. Have you any objection to giving me your views on the present marlet?"
The young lary said that the subject was a very painfu one, and that the public made was already a dead excited, and that sheddid not want to create a panic or excite any uniscensary alarm, but first in her opinion she regarded the stuntion as extrency critical.

"Last writer, sit, was my fifth writer, and I really cannot face the coming storm of debulanies. I am called one of the 'old girls,' though in really fam only 24, and I am going to take my ducks to another market. The melancioly fact, sit, is last there are no marrying men here. Most of the young men in society has young professional or business men, and yet from $75 to $16 a month. And you see, sir, by the time tha poor fellows have paid it sir board, tuilors' oil a and club dues, they have nothing leftite lay up for a rainy day and my brother says that nearly every fellow he knows is more or lees 'stapped,' whatever that is."

The statistician looked grave the data beyan to lee in the "Decrease of Population," and in order to complete the chain of facts necessary to verify any srang position he proposed to lak

the cause of the terrible decrease in the mirriage rule?"

The young lady b ushed, and said, "Not at all, sir It's all those borrid clubs. The dread of sir It's all those borrid clubs. The dread of men will join them. They will go there to spend their evenings, instead of with us, and we veally don't have a chance to have a fair shot at them. The longer they stay in the clubs ine more averse to society they become, and then the horrid, selfish. Ilngs won't marry if' they have to give up her dub. As between a new wife and a modest a yie of living and their club, sir, that they are all like that, for some have nobly closen, wives, and will let the club go. They don't deserve all the credit, hower's, for the girls were arressible. And whenever, it comes to a fair stand up fight between the club and an awalds nip girl the club will get ineworst of it every the.

The man of figures and facts here withdrew, with his note-book examined with data, which will be simply invaluable to the bureau of statistics at Washington.

Adaptation or the Dietary.

We are thus led to the next important consideration, namely, that although broad rules of principles of diet may be enunciated, as applied the control of the control of the individual is possibly without a knowledge of this daily habits and life as well as to some extent of his personal peculiarities. No man, for example, can tell another what he can or ought to sat, without knowledge of the individual is possibly without a knowledge of the individual is possibly another what he can or ought to sat, without knowing what are the habits of life and work—mental and bodilp—of the person to be advised, holivithstanding which, no kni of counsel is more frequently tenders, in common conversation by one strang or with another, than that which con carns the choice of food and drink. The afviser feels hunself warrauted by the experience that some particular combination of nourish ment suits his own stomach to infer without ment suits his own stomach to infer without ment suits his own stomach to infer without hesitation that this dish will be therefore acceptable to the stomachs of all his neighbors. Surely the intelligence of such a man is a slend as as his audenty and presumption are sent in grearly the intelligence of such a man is a slend as a fix with 10 the more of his own if oil, he forthwith solentialy all presumption are sent in greaterly the size on line in the individuals than amon the individuals than amon the individuals than another of the individuals than amon the individuals than another of the purpose of illustration. ninque There has been noting like in this country nor in America, and it is the hyper there never will be again. For five days the pecific of London have been assembled with a diarnal tale of horrors. The streets have been diarnal line of northern who have accordanced througed with rullians, who have accordanced the Pall Vall's narrative with shocking placares and with sickening cries. Ac more terrible bid and when summing or one for more serrious out for a resolution has been made in my time. The temper of the lower classes of London is either temper of the lower classes of London is either excessively mild or the story of the 'Minounte' rich trannizing over the 'minorable poor is regarded as a mild exaggrecation. From day to day the Patt Mall, with details Lithy and fright ful denounced the rich and exhibited the sufferinge of the poor in the most awful light, and surface Reynolds. Nacropaper attent on a surface fuel to the itames by a bare-faced he withy of itself. It states that the delay it passing the criminal amendment bill was the with of the tottes, whereas the truth is the but has been some an amendment bill was the work of the sortes, whereas the truth is the but has been twice guidersed by the house of fords and twice yet wide by the hotse of fords and twice yet wide by the late government of Mr finds stone. The chief clause in this bill is to make the predention of a girl under to or 16 a criminal offense, the precent law fixing the age at 13. The 1 ill. Wolf stated in its preliminary articles that "the importance of the measure has been admitted by both parties, and is based upon the ungent recommendations of a house of kinds committee, of which Lord Salisbury was a recommendation." committee, of which Lord Salisbury was a prominent member. To try and fix the delay on the tories is on a par with the kind of revolutionary journalism which in characteristic of fee alds. Necespaper, founded by that master of 'The Mysteries of London' and other interrupt rakings of the newers.

WHY THE PAPER IS NOT PROSECULE

With the Path Mall leastle really weighed down with a sense of responsibility to the public, he-devoted one day's paper to the subject, has treated it with a solemn dignity, had made at earnest cry, a soul-altring appeal for the children, and had followed it with an invitation is the ball to be subject the sense and the public beautiful to the subject to the subje ennest cry, a soul-surring appeals for the children, and had followed it with an invitation is witnesses, one would have been examine its witnesses, one would have been better satisfied with the moral purpose of the editor but first to warn the squeemish not buy the paper for four days, and these let cruss its pages day after day with a repetition of hor for, the dull monotony of which was unvaried either in scene or subject, large the editor s me two open to grave doubt. When threatsed with prosecution he declared that if he were at tacked he would make public the names of a prince of the blood, calcingt ministers and other entitions and the clube and elsewhere that a certain prince and a certain grince and a cer fall on certain aristocratic besds, shou i the said in or proprietor be prosecuted. At the said time the I II Mail declares that Sin.
